

Swazi Culture

Swazi Culture Museums

There are several museums in Swaziland at which displayed a variety of cultural objects from masterpieces, to manuscripts , to statutes and artifacts as illustrated in the following pictures:

Swazi traditional food

The cuisine of Swaziland is largely determined by the seasons and the geographical region. Staple foods in Swaziland include sorghum and maize, often served with goat meat, a very popular livestock there. The farming industry mainly depends on sugar cane, tobacco, rice, corn, peanuts, and the exportation of goat meat and beef. Many Swazis are subsistence farmers who supplement their diet with food bought from markets. Freshwater produce and imports from coastal nations are also part of the cuisine of Swaziland. Some local markets have food stalls with traditional Swazi meat stew, maize meal and seasonal roasted corn on the cob.

traditional dress:-

African countries have different kinds of traditional dress depending on tribes, customs, traditions and ethnic groups. Swaziland is no exception. It has various kinds of traditional dress for both men and women as illustrated in the following photos:

architecture :-

The architectural style in Swaziland ranges from primitive to modern as featured in the following pictures :

folk dance :-

Folk dance in Swaziland takes different forms depending on various customs and traditions, tribes and regions as shown in the following pictures:

For More information Please Watch this Video:-

<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=PqUYAXx9z8E>